

Heat Transfer Curves

STANMECH has been developing and engineering hot air solutions for Canadian industry since 1981. Today, our technologists and engineers provide assistance to industrial customers across Canada with applications requiring the precise amounts of heat, either as part of a process or on a stand-alone basis. We use the curves shown below to assist us in the development the correct solution for each unique applications challenge.

